ABOUT THIS RESOURCE

This resource is produced by Stonewall, a UK-based charity that stands for the freedom, equity and potential of all lesbian, gay, bi, trans, queer, questioning and ace (LGBTQ+) people.

At Stonewall, we imagine a world where LGBTQ+ people everywhere can live our lives to the full.

Founded in London in 1989, we now work in each nation of the UK and have established partnerships across the globe. Over the last three decades, we have created transformative change in the lives of LGBTQ+ people in the UK, helping win equal rights around marriage, having children and inclusive education.

Our campaigns drive positive change for our communities, and our sustained change and empowerment programmes ensure that LGBTQ+ people can thrive throughout our lives. We make sure that the world hears and learns from our communities, and our work is grounded in evidence and expertise.

THE LEGAL LANDSCAPE

In Stonewall's Global Workplace Equality Index, broad legal zoning is used to group the differing challenges faced by organisations across their global operations.

Australia is classified as a Zone 1 country, which means sexual acts between people of the same sex are legal and clear national employment protections exist for lesbian, gay, and bi people.

Two further zones exist. In Zone 2 countries, sexual acts between people of the same sex are legal but no clear national employment protections exist on grounds of sexual orientation. In Zone 3 countries, sexual acts between people of the same sex are illegal.

FREEDOM OF EXPRESSION, ASSOCIATION AND ASSEMBLY	FAMILY AND RELATIONSHIPS	EQUALITY AND EMPLOYMENT	GENDER IDENTITY	IMMIGRATION
The Australian Constitution does not explicitly guarantee rights to freedom of expression, association and assembly. The High Court of Australia has recognised a limited, implied right of freedom of communication in relation to political and governmental issues. Each State and Territory permits freedom of assembly and association, subject to restrictions relating to public order, public health or public amenity. Some States and Territories (New South Wales, Queensland, Victoria, the Australian Capital Territory and Tasmania) prohibit vilification of LGBT persons.	Sexual acts between people of the same sex are legal. There is an equal age of consent for sexual acts regardless of gender. Same-sex marriage is legal as a result of the law reform in December 2017, the Marriage Act 1961. Overseas marriages between same-sex persons are automatically recognised under Federal law. Unmarried same-sex couples are recognised as de-facto couples under Australian Federal law, with most of the same rights as married couples. Same-sex de-facto couples have equal recognition in respect of taxation, social security, health and other Federal government services. Same-sex couples may also enter into civil unions or domestic partnerships in some States and Territories in Australia. Same-sex couples have equal rights to adopt children in all States and Territories in Australia except the Northern Territory. Trans people may enter into a marriage with a person of either gender. By 9 December 2018, all States and Territories must no longer ban married trans people from changing their gender to that of their married spouse without first divorcing.	The Sex Discrimination Act 1984 prohibits discrimination in employment and certain areas of public life on the grounds of sexual orientation, gender identity and intersex status. Some States' and Territories' sentencing legislation treats crimes based on a person's sexual orientation or because of hate towards a group of people as an aggravating factor in sentencing. In some States and Territories it is a criminal offence to incite hatred towards, show serious contempt for, or severe ridicule of, people who identify as LGBT.	Each State and Territory allows trans people to change their legal gender and name on birth certificates and official registers. The majority of States and Territories only allow for the gender to be changed to 'female' or 'male' but do not permit a person to change their gender to 'unspecified'. Passports can be issued with a person's changed legal gender (including noting the gender as indeterminate/ unspecified) under the Australian Passports Act 2005. Each State and Territory, except the Australian Capital Territory, requires medical intervention and medical evidence to support an application to change a person's legal gender. Intersex people in the Australian Capital Territory can change their legal gender without medical intervention. If a person is under 18 years of age, the Family Court must authorise any gender reassignment surgery, even where there is parental consent to the treatment.	The Migration Act 1958 enables temporary and permanent residency of same-sex partners of Australian citizens, residents and eligible New Zealand citizens.

A VIEW FROM AUSTRALIA

Mark Latchford is the associate director of Pride in Diversity, an organisation dedicated to LGBTI workplace inclusion. Pride in Diversity offers support, training and consulting to employers to further LGBTI workplace inclusivity. Pride in Diversity also publishes the Australian Workplace Equality Index (AWEI), and aims to tackle homophobia, biphobia and transphobia in sport and healthcare via its partner programmes, Pride in Sport and Pride in Health + Wellbeing.

What have been some recent legal developments for LGBT people in Australia?

In the last few years, the legal landscape for LGBTI rights in Australia has changed significantly. Discrimination on the grounds of sexual orientation, gender identity and intersex status is prohibited by federal legislation (as well as most state and territory laws). Same-sex conduct offences have been removed in all Australian jurisdictions – and there are some efforts to help erase historical criminal convictions. The partial defence of an unwelcome 'homosexual advance' to the charge of murder is no longer available. The greatest recent legal change has been the legalisation of same-sex marriage in December 2017. This was the result of 13 years of campaigning, as well as a postal survey that served as a non-binding referendum.

What's been the impact of the same-sex marriage postal survey?

The government promised it would pass the Same Sex Marriage Bill if the 'yes' vote was successful but would squash the bill if it was not. Although the 'yes' vote won with 61.6 per cent and marriage equality was passed, campaigns for the 'no' vote had a harmful effect on the LGBT community. Hurtful and wrong information was released as part of these campaigns. For example, one TV ad stated that boys would have to wear dresses to school if people voted 'yes'. The overall impact of the hate messages on the LGBT community will not be known for some time. However, a survey carried out by the Australian Institute, which included LGBT people, their friends and families, showed that almost 90 per cent of LGBTI people said that the campaign had a negative impact on them to some degree. For example, the number of LGBTI respondents experiencing depression, anxiety and stress increased by more than a third after the announcement of the postal vote. Almost 70 per cent of LGBTI people said they 'avoided' being with people in general at least some of the time as a method of coping. However, resilience and positive coping strategies were also evident. For example, 80 per cent of respondents participated in LGBTI-affirmative activities such as attending marches, raising awareness and displaying 'yes' or rainbow images.

What are the biggest barriers to inclusion in Australian society?

Although a lot of progress on LGBTI inclusion has been made in many major Australian workplaces, institutional barriers continue to exist in sport, health and other human/social services. As an example, the recent Out on the Fields research indicated that 80 per cent of participants witnessed or experienced homophobia in sport (both LGB and non-LGB participants). It is for this reason that Pride in Diversity has expanded its scope to specifically target these areas. We launched Pride in Sport in March 2016 and in 2017 we'll launch a programme dedicated to health.

What is the workplace like for LGBT people in Australia?

Although direct and indirect discrimination against LGBTI people in the workplace is generally prohibited by federal legislation for all employers (there are some religious exemptions), there is still a lot of work to be done in engaging employers in LGBTI workplace inclusion. The 2017 AWEI benchmarked 116 employers nationally and saw 16,759 employees respond to the accompanying employee survey. The number of employees out in the workplace is often an indicator of an organisation's inclusivity. However, the survey showed that fewer lesbian, gay and bi people were open about their sexual orientation in the workplace than in previous years. Respondents working at those organisations active in inclusion were more likely to be out (77 per cent) than those working at organisations new to inclusion (64 per cent).

What can employers do to support their LGBT employees and the LGBT movement in Australia?

There are many social barriers to inclusion for LGBTI people in Australia. Young people in our community are exposed to these barriers from a very early age, including through political discourse and messaging in the media, which can influence the behaviour of their peers in schools. Accordingly, workplaces trying to build an LGBTI-inclusive culture, have to address the impact of these social disadvantages in order to make a real difference to the lived professional experience of their LGBTI staff. This involves first learning about how these social barriers have an impact on people's professional lives. It also means creating specific structural initiatives that support LGBTI staff in very explicit terms.

Part of the training that we offer through Pride in Diversity helps workplaces to understand why ambiguous messaging can reinforce the reluctance of LGBTI people to bring their full selves to work. Once these foundational steps have been taken, workplaces that have experienced a lot of success in this space have entered into a phase of meaningful engagement with the LGBTI community, in order to understand how they can best support their staff and input into important LGBTI causes that have wider relevance.

LGBT INCLUSION IN THE WORKPLACE

THE FOUNDATIONS

There are several steps employers can take to start creating a supportive workplace environment for their LGBT employees in Australia:

- ✓ Consult local LGBT organisations to understand the local context for LGBT people
- ✓ Introduce explicitly LGBT-inclusive anti-discrimination and bullying and harassment policies
- ✓ Train HR staff and promote inclusive policies
- ✓ Carry out LGBT-inclusive diversity training
- ✓ Encourage senior managers to promote their commitment to LGBT inclusion and equality

NEXT STEPS

Once a foundation has been built, there are further steps employers can take to bring about positive change for LGBT people. For example:

- ✓ Audit and extend equal benefits to LGBT partners
- ✓ Establish employee engagement mechanisms like LGBT networks and allies programmes
- ✓ Carry out LGBT awareness-raising events
- ✓ Partner with local LGBT groups to advance LGBT equality beyond the workplace
- ✓ Work with suppliers and partners to advance LGBT workplace equality

Employers can improve their initiatives by participating in Stonewall's Global Workplace Equality Index - a free benchmarking tool offering a clear roadmap to LGBT inclusion in the workplace. www.stonewall.org.uk/gwei

Pinsent Masons Pinsent Masons believes everyone should be fully equal in the workplace. Within months of the opening of Pinsent Masons' new offices in Melbourne, Sydney, and Perth in 2016, the firm's commitment to LGBT equality was confirmed by its new team and communicated locally. Shortly after the launch, head of Pinsent Masons in Australia and senior ally, David Rennick, publicly stated the firm's support for the marriage equality campaign with an open letter published by the Australian Marriage Equality Organisation. More recently, David communicated to the office the firm's position on diversity and inclusion, providing a link to support employees through the marriage equality debate and vote at the time. Allies at Pinsent Masons make a commitment to championing LGBT equality across the business, working together to create a culture where everyone is equal. With senior-level support from two partners in Australia, Pinsent Masons successfully rolled out a global ally initiative with a poster campaign in Melbourne and Sydney. This raised the profile of the programme among colleagues and encouraged new members to join. Allies in the Australian offices are visible on a day-to-day basis, identified with rainbow mugs on their desks and profiled on the firm's intranet to help clearly demonstrate their support for the initiative. In 2015, during a secondment to the firm's Australian offices, one of the firm's London-based LGBT network representatives established a relationship between Australian allies and Pride in Diversity, an Australian organisation seeking to promote sexual orientation and gender identity diversity in the workplace. Pinsent Masons remains represented at their roundtable discussions with other prominent organisations in Australia. In 2016, the firm's Melbourne and Sydney offices participated in a new LGBT-inclusive webinar training course on unconscious bias, and in 2017, completed a compulsory LGBTI awareness session. This training now runs annually for all new starters. The three offices also actively participate in the firm's annual Diversity Week event.

Allen & Overy A&O, Allen & Overy's global LGBT staff network, aims to create an equal and inclusive workplace for LGBT employees across the world. The chapter in Australia plays a key part in contributing to global initiatives and driving change locally and across the Asia Pacific region. With visible support from the firm's regional managing partner, A&O host events in support of LGBT equality and shares best practice by taking part in networking and round-table events with other businesses and LGBT groups. In 2016 the firm formally launched their global allies programme to increase the level and visibility and support for their LGBT colleagues. The initiative has been hugely popular and the firm now have over 700 allies globally. In the Sydney office the reception area boasts an 'ally wall' where allies can pledge their support for the LGBT community. The wall is a way of raising the visibility of the network to staff members and visitors and encouraging new members to sign up. Rainbow flags and branded coffee mugs for LGBT staff and allies also make support in the office evident and colourful. A partnership with a local LGBT organisation, Pride in Diversity, help Allen & Overy get a better understanding of the local context for LGBT people. Training has been key to Allen & Overy's success. Internal practices have been improved thanks to Pride in Diversity's face to face and online training sessions and, as an active member of the Diversity Council of Australia, the firm has benefited from training sessions and webinars on LGBT equality topics.
